Working Better Than Before: Understanding Habits to Manage Yourself & Others Better

- How understanding crucial differences in how people approach the world allows us to manage ourselves better, manage other people better, and reduce arguments about who is “right” and “wrong.”
- The difference between Abstainers vs. Moderators (about how to fight temptation); Marathoners vs. Sprinters vs. Procrastinators (about the pace at which work should be completed—a real issue within teams); Finishers vs. Openers (about a person’s willingness to work toward completion or to start something new); and the “Four Tendencies” framework (about how a person responds to a request or an order).
- How to best motivate people, help them change their habits, make it possible for them to work and live together harmoniously and how to manage yourself.

The Upside of Stress: Why Stress is Good for You & How to Get Good at It

- Why embracing stress is a more effective coping strategy than avoiding stress.
- How to cultivate a “challenge” mindset that helps you thrive under pressure.
- Simple strategies for transforming the biology of your stress response, to improve health and well-being.
- Why stress and meaning are linked, and how to use stress as a catalyst for personal growth.
- How bigger-than-self goals create resilience and hope during adversity.

Playing Big: Find Your Voice, Your Mission, Your Message

- How to recognize your inner critic and practical tools you can use each day to quiet its voice.
- How being “hooked” by both positive and negative feedback limits women’s “playing big”, and the gentle way to get free of that – including a radical way of understanding and utilizing feedback.
- The “little things” we do in our speech and writing that diminish our impact. How to let them go, and what to do instead.
- How to identify your callings and practical steps to start living yours right away – even if that seems near impossible now.

LEEZA GIBBONS

Emmy Award Winning Journalist, New York Times Bestselling Author & Winner of Celebrity Apprentice

Emmy Award winner Leeza Gibbons is one of the most well-known pop-culture icons on the air. In addition to her impressive background in the field of entertainment and news media, Gibbons is an instrumental advocate for healthcare, wellness, and caregiving. She is also a wife, mother, winner of The Celebrity Apprentice Season 7 against Geraldo Rivera, EMMY award winner and a New York Times bestselling author.

The spectrum of Gibbons' career in entertainment and news media is diverse and impressive. Her on-camera hosting dominance in the entertainment-news and talk-show arenas ranges from the most popular entertainment news show in history, Entertainment Tonight, to her award-winning daytime talk show, Leeza. Her current roles include hosting the syndicated TV news magazine show America

Now alongside Bill Rancic, and the weekly TV news show My Generation on PBS, for which she won the 2013 Daytime Emmy Award for Outstanding Talk Show Host.

Recognized as a social entrepreneur, Gibbons has become one of the leading voices for issues facing family caregivers. When her mother and grandmother were struggling with Alzheimer's disease, she created what she wished she and her family had and started the Leeza Gibbons Memory Foundation. Her training as a journalist united with her compassion and business savvy when she opened the foundation's signature programs Leeza's Place and Leeza's Care Connection, offering free services for family caregivers encouraging them to call on their courage and summon their strength for the long journey ahead.

Over the years, Gibbons has become known as a trusted girlfriend, valued confidante and source of inspiration and information, empowering women to show up for their lives with confidence and pride. Whether it's her scrapbook line honoring the value of memories, her jewelry collection to symbolize transformation, or her cosmetic products to reveal inner and outer beauty, Gibbons develops programs and products to help women claim their strength and rewrite the story of their lives.

In 2013, Leeza Gibbons published Take 2, a personal growth guide designed to help people recreate themselves and hit the reset button on their lives. Her uplifting personality shines through in this New York Times bestseller. Recognizability, Relatability and Reputation – that and more is what you get with Gibbons as she uplifts, empowers and motivates audiences and viewers to get more out of life and business.

"The way Leeza was able to intertwine the message of empowerment throughout her own story and then find such common threads that each of the listeners could relate to was masterful. I am confident that each attendee walked away with something personal and long lasting from her address."

SUZY WELCH

New York Times Bestselling Author & Former editor-in-chief of the Harvard Business Review

Bestselling author, popular television commentator and noted business journalist Suzy Welch is the author of the New York Times bestseller 10-10-10: A Life Transforming Idea. The book, which presents a powerful decision-making strategy for success at work and in parenting, love and friendship, was published in 29 countries.

Suzy and her husband Jack Welch co-authored the international bestsellers Winning and the follow up Winning: The Answers. Together they have also written business columns for several publications, including Business Week, Fortune magazine and The New York Times. Up next, they will release The Real-Life MBA: Your No-BS Guide to Winning The Game, Building a Team, and Growing Your Career. Together Jack and Suzy will explore the most pressing challenges related to creating winning strategies, leading and managing others, and building a thriving career.

In 2009, the couple launched the Jack Welch Management Institute at Strayer University, a unique online MBA and certificate program aimed at giving students around the world and at every career level the tools to transform their lives and the organizations of the future.

On her own, Suzy has written extensively about work-life balance and other cultural issues for publications ranging from O, The Oprah Magazine to The Wall Street Journal. In addition, her candid and perceptive commentary has made her a popular commentator on television programs including Good Morning America, The View, Morning Joe, Your World With Neil Cavuto, and Power Lunch.

Born in Portland, Oregon, Suzy received her degree from Harvard University before joining The Miami Herald as a reporter. She left daily journalism to attend Harvard Business School, where she graduated as a Baker Scholar in 1988. Suzy joined the Harvard Business Review in 1995 and was named editor-in-chief in 2001. During her tenure at HBR, Suzy was the author of numerous articles on leadership, change, creativity and organizational behavior, as well as the contributor to several books on management.

“Suzy Welch sparkles with brilliant ideas. In 10-10-10 she offers a profound, easy-to-apply tool for making tough decisions simple, finding clarity amid life's confusions. If you're wondering what to do, which path to follow at the fork, whether to stay or leave, 10-10-10 will help you find your way.”

- Dan Goleman, author of Emotional Intelligence

GRETCHEN RUBIN

#1 New York Times Bestselling Author of The Happiness Project, Happier at Home & Better Than Before

Gretchen Rubin is the author of several books, including the #1 New York Times and international bestseller, The Happiness Project—an account of the year she spent test-driving the wisdom of the ages, the current scientific studies, and the lessons from popular culture about how to be happier. On her popular blog, The Happiness Project, she reports on her daily adventures in the pursuit of happiness.

In her next book, Happier at Home, Rubin embarked on a new project to explore how to make home a happier place. Starting in September (the new January), Gretchen dedicates a school year—from September through May—to concentrating on the factors that matter most for home, such as possessions, marriage, time, parenthood, body, neighborhood. The book's title was inspired by a line from Samuel Johnson:

“To be happy at home is the ultimate result of all ambition.”

Gretchen's latest, Better Than Before: Mastering the Habits of Our Everyday Lives, tackles the critical question: How do we change? Gretchen Rubin's answer: through habits. Habits are the invisible architecture of everyday life. It takes work to make a habit, but once that habit is set, we can harness the energy of habits to build happier, stronger, more productive lives.

A graduate of Yale and Yale Law School, where she was Editor-in-Chief of the Yale Law Journal and winner of the Edgar M. Cullen Prize, Rubin started her career in law, and she was clerking for Justice Sandra Day O'Connor when she realized she really wanted to be a writer. Rubin is much in demand as a speaker, and she has addressed corporate audiences at places such as GE, Google, LinkedIn, Accenture, Procter & Gamble, as well as university audiences such as Yale Law School, Harvard Business School, and Wharton.

Rubin was one of the first people asked to become a LinkedIn “Influencer,” where she has an enormous, active group of followers. She was named one of the “100 Most Influential People in Health and Fitness,” one of the Inc.'s Top 50 Leadership and Management Experts, and one of the “22 Brilliant Thinkers Everyone Should Follow on Twitter” by Business Insider.

Raised in Kansas City, she lives in New York City with her husband and two daughters.

“Gretchen Rubin combines deep research and observations from her own life to explain how habits emerge and—more important—how they can change. It's indispensable for anyone hoping to overhaul how they (almost unthinkingly) behave.”

- Charles Duhigg, New York Times bestselling author of The Power of Habit

DR. KELLY McGONIGAL

Bestselling Author of The Upside of Stress, The Willpower Instinct & Lecturer at Stanford University

Kelly McGonigal, PhD, is a health psychologist and a leading expert on the mind-body relationship. She is a lecturer at Stanford University, for the Graduate School of Business's MBA and executive education programs, and for the School of Medicine's Center for Compassion and Altruism Research and Education.

She is the author of several books, including the The Upside of Stress, the international bestseller The Willpower Instinct, and The Neuroscience of Change. She has consulted for a wide range of organizations and industries ranging from healthcare and higher education to technology and finance, helping to bring evidence-based strategies for resilience and well-being into the workplace.

She teaches for a wide range of programs at Stanford University and has received a number of teaching awards for her undergraduate psychology courses, including Stanford University's highest teaching honor, the Walter J. Gores award. Her popular public courses through Stanford's Continuing Studies program—including the Science of Willpower and the Science of Compassion—demonstrate the applications of psychological science to personal health and happiness, as well as organizational success and social change. Through a wide range of conferences, workshops, university-affiliated programs, and consulting, Dr. McGonigal also provides continuing education and training to executives, teachers, healthcare providers, and other professionals.

Dr. McGonigal's work has been covered widely by the media, including the CBS Evening News, U.S. News and World Report, CNN.com, O! The Oprah Magazine,

Time magazine, USA Today, and the American Psychological Association's Monitor on Psychology. She is also a frequent source of expert advice and commentary for media outlets such as the New York Times, the Washington Post, the Los Angeles Times, MSNBC.com, Web MD, Time, Fitness, Women's Health, and more. In 2010, Forbes named her one of the 20 most inspiring women to follow on Twitter. In 2012, she teamed up with the Oprah Winfrey Network and Superbetter Labs to create an online game that would spread the benefits of gratitude to millions of people worldwide.

Dr. McGonigal received her PhD in psychology from Stanford University, with a concentration in humanistic medicine. She received a B.A. in Psychology and a B.S. in Mass Communication from Boston University.

“Kelly McGonigal is a leader driven by compassion and pragmatism.”
