WHAT YOU WILL LEARN

GEENA DAVIS

Academy Award-Winning Actress and Founder & Chair of the Geena Davis
Institute on Gender in Media

Academy Award winner Geena Davis is one of Hollywood's most respected actors, appearing in several roles that became cultural landmarks. Earning the 2006 Golden Globe Award for Best Performance by an Actress in a Television Series – Drama, Davis broke ground in her portrayal of the first female President of the United States in ABC's hit show Commander in Chief.

In 1989, Davis received the Academy Award for Best Supporting Actress for her role as the offbeat dog trainer 'Muriel Pritchett' in Lawrence Kasdan's The Accidental Tourist. She was again nominated for an Academy Award and Golden Globe for her performance as 'Thelma' in Ridley Scott's Thelma and Louise, in which she co-starred with Susan Sarandon.

Davis went on to receive a Golden Globe nomination for Best Actress for her portrayal of baseball phenomenon 'Dottie Hinson' in A League of Their Own.

Few have achieved such remarkable success in as many different fields as Davis has: she is not only an Oscar and Golden Globe winning actor, but a world-class athlete (at one time the nation's 13th-ranked archer), a member of the genius society Mensa, and is becoming recognized for her tireless advocacy of women and girls nearly as much as for her acting accomplishments. She is the founder of the non-profit the Geena Davis Institute on Gender in Media and its programming arm See Jane, which engages film and television creators to dramatically increase the percentages of female characters and reduce gender stereotyping.

Davis holds honorary degrees from Boston University, Bates College and New England College. She currently resides in Los Angeles.

LEADERSHIP & EMPOWERMENT

- Her mission to work within the entertainment industry to dramatically alter how girls and women are reflected in media.
- Why and how being cast in Thelma & Louise changed Geena's life – and spurred her into creating a women's empowerment non-profit and becoming a lifelong advocate for women.
- How her Institute on Gender in Media is at the forefront of changing female portrayals and gender stereotypes, through research, education, strategic guidance and advocacy programs.

“ Her message about how women are portrayed in the media and under-represented fit powerfully with the YWCA's mission of empowering women and families in our community. She was also very down to earth, grounded and generous.

- CEO, YWCA

DR. ANNE-MARIE SLAUGHTER

Bestselling Author of Unfinished Business & CEO of New America

Described as “an innovative and prolific scholar” by Foreign Policy and named one of the magazine’s Top 100 Global Thinkers four years in a row, Anne-Marie Slaughter turns big ideas and deep analysis into realistic strategies for a networked world. A Princeton University foreign policy expert, a former top official at the U.S. State Department, and a Work-Life leader, Dr. Slaughter confronts a range of topics — from geopolitics and global challenges to gender equality and leadership — with a unique and powerful voice.

As President and CEO of New America, a public policy institute and idea incubator, Slaughter leads a team of scientists, technologists, and political and economic thinkers in Washington, DC and New York City. New America develops cutting-edge solutions for public problems in such areas as national security, healthcare, technology policy, and education.

From 2009-2011, Slaughter headed the U.S. State Department’s internal think tank and advised Secretary of State Hillary Clinton. As the Director of Policy Planning, the first woman to hold the position, she oversaw a major review of America’s diplomatic and development priorities.

Slaughter became one of the country’s most talked about writers with “Why Women Still Can’t Have It All,” an in-depth and controversial look into the extreme work-life balance of today’s professional women. It quickly became the most-read article in The Atlantic’s 100-year history. Named one of the best books of 2015 by NPR and The Economist, Slaughter’s latest, Unfinished Business: Women Men Work Family, focuses on the future of the workplace. The Financial Times featured her in its special issue, “Women of 2015.”

Slaughter received her doctorate in International Relations from Oxford and her law degree from Harvard.

GENDER EQUALITY & WORK-LIFE BALANCE

- With practical individual solutions and a broad outline for change, she presents a future in which all of us, men and women alike, can finally have fulfilling careers along with the rewards of family life.
- Why we must transform gender roles for men and women and build a national infrastructure of care to support the on-demand economy.
- Slaughter shows what real innovation looks like, not for women, but for all employees. She identifies a set of specific policies that improve the quality of life for employees, company performance and productivity.

“After reading Unfinished Business, I’m confident that you will be left with Anne-Marie’s hope and optimism that we can change our points of view and policies so that both men and women can fully participate in their families and use their full talents on the job.

- Hillary Rodham Clinton

magazine and more. She earned a degree in Economics from Stanford University and attended the Stanford Graduate School of Business. Additional awards include 2010 Top Ten Female Entrepreneurs from Inc. Magazine, 2012 Top Ten Female CEOs from Inc. Magazine and 2012's 40 Under 40 and Most Admired CEO lists from the San Francisco Business Times.

Herrin lives in the San Francisco Bay area with her family.

— DR. HEIDI GRANT HALVORSON —

Bestselling Author, Social Psychologist & Associate Director of the Motivation Science Centre at Columbia Business School

Motivational psychologist Dr. Heidi Grant Halvorson has a goal: to help people and organizations achieve theirs. And with simple strategies rooted in scientific research, that's exactly what she does, empowering organizational leaders with proven tools for maximizing commitment, resisting distraction, devising effective strategic plans, seizing opportunities to act, and persisting in the face of setbacks or challenges.

Outstanding organizations, like outstanding people, reach their goals because of what they do, not just who they are, according to Dr. Grant Halvorson. An exhaustive study of achievement and motivation has led her to pinpoint the keys to mastering the art (and science) of execution — the nine things successful people do differently. They're not rocket science, but they are proven to help people reach their goals by focusing less on past failures and more on what really matters: commitment, planning, effort, strategy, self-control and persistence.

Heidi is the author of Focus: Use Different Ways of Seeing The World for Success and Influence, co written with E. Tory Higgins, has received rave reviews from Dan Pink, Robert Cialdini, Jim Kouzes, Dan Gilbert, Chip & Dan Heath, and many others. She is also the author of the bestselling Succeed: How We Can Reach Our Goals and Nine Things Successful People Do Differently. Her latest book is No One Understands You and What to Do About It.

Dr. Grant Halvorson is a member of the highly selective Society for Experimental Social Psychology. She received her PhD in social psychology from Columbia University.
